Parody, Caricature and Pastiche

There is an exception to copyright that permits people to use limited amounts of copyright material without the owner's permission for the purpose of parody, caricature or pastiche.

The images created for this colouring book are made with various editing and Ai creation sources, including Midjourney Ai, Canva and Mimi Panda to generate new images for your entertainment, that may be based on public images selected by the Ai. In that the Ai may have selected from any that are copyright, the copyright exception for satire is applicable.

The images contained herein are not copyright, with the exception of the unicorn hunting blog logo, and you are free to use, download, amend or include them for your own purposes as you see fit. If you wish to give us a shout out, as a non-commercial information service, it is appreciated.

This colouring book has been created as a work of satire and political commentary on the UK government and the 2024 general election, for you to use privately to express your frustrations, and as such some of the images appear familiar and some have content that may be triggering for those who have endured certain situations and experiences common in the last 14 years (references to Covid,disability, the elderly, poverty, homelessness, immigration & deportation, urban degeneration, etc.)

Unicorn Hunting Blog is an online blog for adults running since 2017, typically examining issues related to alternative lifestyles, non-monogamy and our attempts to create a utopia in wider society. Much of it is deeply rooted in satire. Despite the attempts by our community, we cannot exist forever in a bubble, and the words and actions by the government affect us all.

Happy hunting.
